

Georges H. Kendall

Speaker, Round Table: Innocence & Abolition

George H. Kendall is a senior counsel in the New York office of Holland & Knight. He works exclusively on the community services team that devotes all of its attention to pro bono matters. A graduate of the University of Richmond and Antioch Law School, Mr. Kendall left private practice in criminal defense to head the ACLU's 11th Circuit Capital Litigation Project and later joined the capital defense team at the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. He has handled death penalty cases around the country at trial, on appeal, and in post-conviction proceedings, including in the United States Supreme Court, and regularly consults with capital defense lawyers nationwide. At LDF, he edited the newsletter Race Notes, which advanced new arguments and strategies to minimize the influence of racial bias in the criminal justice system. He has taught courses on criminal justice issues at Yale Law School, Florida State University College of Law and St. John's School of Law.
